President Rizzini Welcomes Students

Frosh: Maintain Balance

Upperclassmen: Continue On

To All Freshman Students:

Welcome to Roger Williams College. You are entering one of the most exciting stages of your lives. A great deal of responsibility is going to be thrust upon you. You should strive to maintain a balance between your academic responsibilities and your opportunities to participate in the various activities on campus. Probably the best advice I can give you is to attempt to be involved with the affairs sponsored by the student body because such activities will reward you with a wholesome college experience.

You will find a first rate faculty, a competent staff and an aggressive administration here at this campus. All of us look forward to working with each of you.

Please feel free to stop by my office to chat.

THE PRESIDENT SPEAKS-William Rizzini, addressing new students.

To All Returning Students:

We have missed you during the summer months and are happy that you are returning to be with us for another year. All of us want you to continue on toward a successful completion of your academic programs. Never forget that your primary reason for being at Roger Williams is to successfully progress through your studies in order to achieve your goal of graduation.

I hope that you will find life at Roger Williams improving each year. This year promises to be an exciting one for we will have the opportunity to begin some new traditions at the College. One of these traditions will be a Homecoming Weekend for Alumni. Others are some new additions to our physical plant which should ease some space problems.

All in all we anticipate a good year. Should you find yourself in the vicinity of the second floor of the Administration Building, feel free to stop by my office to chat.

Late Negotiations Avert Staff Strike

By the Quill Editorial Board

Late night negotiations between the RWC Administration and the Clerical Staff Union have resulted in a tentative agreement between the two that averted a planned strike by the Union.

The agreement, reached early Tuesday morning, was arrived at just one day before classes were scheduled to start.

If terms had not been agreed upon, the clerical staff had threatened to go on strike Tuesday, the day set for in-person registration. It is not known if instructors would have honored the picket lines by refusing to teach classes on Wednesday.

Donna Bellemore, president of the union, feels that the members of the union had higher salary expectations than what they received.

"However, the overall proposal for the first contract was as reasonable as possible," she said.

Robert McKenna, head negotiator for the administration, felt that negotiations went well for the salary issue. He said that he hoped future negotiations on other issues will go as well.

Issues that will be decided on in the future include benefits, holidays and vacations.

According to Bellemore, and other members of the clerical staff, by October 1 the full two-year contract will be finalized.

"At the end of the expiration date, we will negotiate a salary and wage scale," said Bellemore.

According to Bellemore, it was not a coincidence that negotiations were settled just prior to the opening day of classes.

"Because of cancellations, both sides could not get together until only recently. However, the clerical negotiation team was available for negotiations in the past."

In an effort to alleviate the lack of clerical personnel during pre-registration, had the strike gone through, Steven Fusco, President of the Student Senate, sent a memo

Two Dean of Students Candidates Visiting School Today and Friday

By Bill Winter

Out of the more than 70 hopefuls who applied for the job, the two finalists for the vacant Dean of Students position will be on campus today and tomorrow for a series of interviews with the college community.

The two individuals chosen by the Search Committee for these final interviews are Dr. Karen R. Haskell, currently the Assistant Dean of Student Life at Wheaton College in Mass., and James L. Hickey, now the Associate Dean of Student Life at Boston University.

Dr. Haskell will be on campus today, with Hickey arriving tomorrow. The two candidates will follow the same interview schedule for both days.

From 12:00 to 12:45 they will meet with the Student Senate and other

Hawk Squad Is Rated Top Notch

No matter how hard one tried, it would have been practically impossible to find a single person last Saturday who had anything but compliments for this year's RWC Hawk Squad.

"They were the hit of Orientation Week", said Dean of Students William O'Connell. "They made moving in a very special day for the freshmen."

The Hawk Squad, a group of upperclassmen who returned to school several days early to help the new students move in, did a great deal of work to earn their free Hawk tee-shirt. They helped carry luggage into rooms, answered the questions of the freshmen and their parents, and handed out keys.

The squad, about 50 in number, had considerably fewer people than years past, but even this did not seem to slow things down.

"Although they were smaller than ever before, it was a matter of quality over quantity," said O'Connell.

However few they were, this year's Hawks, directed by John Mount, interested students in the Student Senate office, located in the Student Center.

From 12:45 to 1:30 Haskell and Hickey will be interviewed by the RWC staff in the conference room in the Administration Building, and the faculty will get their chance to question them from 2:15 to 3:00, also in the Conference Room.

The Resident Assistants will meet with the two from 3:15 to 4:00, and the Administration from 4:15 to 5:00, again in the Conference Room.

Fairly reliable sources indicate that the final decision may be made as soon as the beginning of November.

President Rizzini said that if for some reason the two finalists are not found suitable by the college community, the Committee will then go down the list of remaining candidates until one is found acceptable.

The search Committee in charge of selecting the new Dean of Students is comprised of two administrators, one student service representative, four students, one faculty member, and one corporation member, and was

Sue Badamo Resigns Senate

Sophomore Sue Badamo resigned from the Student Senate effective Tuesday, September 4, sitting a heavy work load.

Karen Croake, a Senior, has been appointed Secretary to fill the position left vacant by Badamo's resignation.

Charlie Dobbins will be sworn in at the next regularly scheduled Senate meeting as her replacement. Dobbins was the first runner-up in the campus wide elections held last Spring.

organized in early April.

The college instituted this external, nation-wide search after President Rizzini decided not to appoint any of the internal search candidates to the position. The internal search had been conducted in March and April.

William O'Connell is currently serving as Acting Dean of Students while the search is underway. When a final decision is made, O'Connell will become Director of Student Services.

Almedia Won't Be A Dorm Stress Housing Directors

By Kimberly Newton

Seven stapled pages and four housing directors are the only barriers that are keeping the Almeida Apartments from functioning as a dormitory.

And Paul Nalette, head night manager for the apartments, has every intention of keeping it that way.

Approximately 320 upperclassmen moved into the six buildings on Monday, and each were handed a lease upon arrival.

"The seven page lease is strict," said Nalette, "but if everyone follows the rules, we will all be part of the newest living offered by RWC."

The 55 clause lease, which tells the shoulds and the shouldn'ts of everything from dirty laundry to picture hooks, has two important signatures-the occupant's and the director's.

According to Nalette, many students sign the lease without reading it thoroughly first. They thereby miss the clause that states that residents who don't comply with rules, will be evicted.

"And we have every intention of doing so," said Nalette. "We have only one chance to make this type of

Third Orientation Proved A Success

According to Dean of Students William O'Connell, by the third time you do something, it should be just about perfect. This year was O'Connell's third time around at organizing the freshman orientation weekend.

In comparison to past years, more students attended the workshops and social events.

"I feel the number of students who attended and enjoyed these functions, is the basis on which the orientation should be judged," said O'Connell.

"I have gotten mostly positive feedback from everyone concerned—faculty, administrators, and students. I would say that this was the best year ever."

According to O'Connell, the basic goals of this year's orientation were to create an atmosphere which allowed freshmen to feel motivated and optimistic about college life; to create an environment which encouraged the spirit of community, and finally to display the college as an academic community, whose purpose is to educate the freshmen both academically and socially.

"In order to create an environment in which people were optimistic with one another, we had to provide social functions where students could meet each other," he said.

"That's what the disco was, and in fact, it was probably our best choice. Dancing brings people together in a relaxed way, but discoing is a touching dance, perhaps the most humanistic way at meeting people."

The second goal, that of creating a sense of community, was established by the interaction of faculty, administrators and students within the workshops.

According to O'Connell, the third goal was achieved by the academic dinner.

"This was a chance for freshmen to meet individuals outside of their particular units or floors. Because they were seated with members of their majors, they were given the opportunity to become friendly with students on an academic basis."

In order to make this year's orientation a success, resident assistants took more of an active part than they did in former years.

"What I feel was crucial, was that RA's stressed that the workshops and social events were mandatory," said O'Connell. "I feel we had more than three quarters of the freshman class participating."

The seven workshops held were Coping with College, Life Styles, Career Opportunities, Study Skills Seminar, Health Care, Introduction to the Library and Community Service.

Kaiser Factory Placed on the Auction Block

The Kaiser Aluminum factory, which was given to RWC just two years ago, is currently up on the auction block for sale or lease.

The RWC Board of Trustees formed an ad-hoc committee in June to study marketing proposals for the former Kaiser Aluminum property. President William H. Rizzini said that the college has already received several offers for the property, and is currently studying them.

Rizzini also said proposals for development of the site will be reviewed by the committee, but said, "It should be noted there is a strong feeling by the board toward sale or lease of the property."

PRESS CLIPPINGS Solve Your Identity Crisis

Are you having an identity crisis? The easiest way to solve it is by having your student I.D. picture taken this Saturday and Wednesday in the Lecture Halls.

The pictures will be taken on Saturday, September 8, from 9:00 to 2:00, and on Wednesday, September 12 from 1:00 to 4:00 in the lecture halls area in the Classroom Building.

Student I.D.'s will be required for many of the Student Senate sponsored events on campus, and can be used to receive discounts at many local stores.

Not only Freshman and transfer students can have their pictures taken at this time, but also upperclassmen who have lost their old I.D. The I.D.'s will be given out immediately after the student's picture is taken.

Cafeteria Redecorated

The cafeteria is looking a lot better since it was redecorated over the summer months, "but it is up to the students to make sure that it stays that way," said Val Mahoney, Food Services Director.

The redecoration project completed last month, was planned and carried out by Mahoney, Paul Nalette, Kevin Wynne, and Vice President Robert McKenna. The entire cafeteria was repainted, wood paneling put up, and plants were hung from the ceiling. The plants, however, will be taken down for any cafeteria events, such as concerts.

Plans for the next phase of remodeling, which may be done next summer, include a sound-proofing dividing curtain and perhaps a large wall mural.

Tuition: Up and Away

If you found yourself having to dig a little deeper into your wallet to pay for your stay at RWC this year, you shouldn't have been surprised. Like just about everything else, the price of an education has gone up—about 9 percent for the 19-80 academic year at the college.

The price hike, which was approved by the Board of Trustees in June, boosts the tuition to $3,048 per year, room and board fees for a single room to 2,156 per year, and $1,966 for a double or triple on campus.

Barbara Love Solves Housing Problems

The resignation of Paul Nalette from his position as Director of Residential Life has resulted in major reshuffling of the Housing Office. Peter Sherman has been promoted to Senior Housing Director, and Barbara Love has been hired to fill the position left vacant by Sherman.

During a recent interview, Love said, "I like my position; I wouldn't be happy if I wasn't running around all the time. This job certainly gives me enough opportunities to go nuts."

"But seriously, this position is ideal for me. I loved my years as an RA, and also my year as the Resident Night Manager at Ramada. I really love working with students, and this is an ideal way to do this," she continued.

Love was both interviewed and hired by Nalette, after he made his resignation public.

GOING NUTS—Barbara Love found her first week of housing hectic.

"Paul knew I really loved this type of work, and the way I handled myself in these type of positions was good. The problems that I did come across, I try to work out myself, and most people felt I would be good for the position."

According to Love, the first few days of the new job were quite hectic. "It was during the time just before the freshmen came back, and everyone who works down here knows how hectic that time can be. Peter was on his honeymoon, so all who was left were Billy and myself."

"After the first few days, things got smoother every day. But thank God I don't have to go through that again."

Although she majored in marketing, while a student at RWC, her years of working directly with the Housing Office have altered her career ideals. She is currently working for her master's at Salve Regina where she is majoring in human development and management.

"I guess I'll make a career out of this housing office," she laughed.

Almeida Students will Find Apartment Life Much Different

living work. Otherwise, we'll be back to R.A.s and unit meetings."

"Excessive noise that in any way disturbs other occupants will not be tolerated. This includes parties of any type and especially, kegs of beer," he continued.

According to Nalette, parties bring noise, noise draws people, and people draw beer, and there is nothing easier than a party to destroy the $500,000 worth of furniture that the college invested for the apartments.

The lease, which was drawn from Bay Side Apartments, former Almeida apartments, and the RWC dormitory contract, is typical of most garden apartments—and, according to Nalette, a fair one.

To the mature student, Almeida offers independence, more control over lifestyles, and a more private and relaxed environment.

Purchased in March, the apartment complex has three types of living arrangements—one and two bedroom apartments and town house units. The two bedroom apartments and the town houses have accommodations for four students, while the one bedrooms house two students.

"Approximately $1,000 was spent to furnish each apartment. Furniture includes dining table and chairs, a couch, one or two livingroom chairs, two end tables, a coffee table, desks, and enough beds and dressers to accommodate the number of students living in each apartment," said Nalette.

Other conveniences offered at the apartments are wall-to-wall carpeting, electric heat, dishwashers, garbage disposals, full baths and a large parking lot.

The separate recreational facility, located adjacent to the townhouses, offers a swimming pool, saunas, weight lifting and exercise rooms and showers. Fenced in courts are offered for the tennis enthusiast.

The operational hours for the recreation areas are incomplete to date due to the amount of students who are R.I. certified lifeguards.

"The housing directors are more like the superintendents that you find in any large apartment complex. We're here to handle emergencies, maintenance problems and to make sure every one has a chance to live happily outside of a dormitory facility," said Nalette.

Freshmen Senate Election Announced For October

The RWC Student Senate will hold its annual Fall Semester elections for three new Senators on October 3rd and 4th. All Freshmen and transfer students new to RWC are eligible to run for these offices.

Any students interested in seeking these positions must have a petition signed by 25 students submitted to the Senate no later than September 19. These nomination papers can be picked up from the Senate office on the ground floor of the Student Center anytime during Senate office hours: 9:00 to 3:00, Monday through Friday.

A platform paper, stating why the individual wishes to run for the position must also be submitted on the 17. These platform papers will be printed in the Quill before the election.

Although only Freshman and transfer students can run for the vacant Senatorial positions during these elections, all RWC students are allowed to vote. Voting booths will be set up in the Student Center between 9:00 and 4:00 on the

Dorm Gov. VP Election Coming Up

Dormitory students at RWC will have the chance to vote for a new Dorm Government Vice President in a special election to be held sometime during the last week of September.

The election is being held to select a replacement for Mary Martin, who had to resign as Vice President when she moved off campus this semester. Martin was elected to the position at the end of last semester.

Dorm Government President John Mount has announced that the election is tentatively scheduled for September 24 and 25.

Any residential student interested in the position may pick up a petition from Mount, who lives at Apartment 325 at Almedia. The petition must be signed by 50 residential students.

The Vice President of Dorm Government serves as Chairman of the Social Committee, and chairs meetings in the absence of the President.

Dorm Government representatives will be chosen during the first week of September at individual unit and floor meetings. Two reps. will be selected from each floor, one from each unit, and two from the Bristol Motor Lodge.

Details for choosing representatives from the Almedia Apartments are being worked on.

Dorm Government is of residential students focusing on the various aspects of dormitory living. Some of the Government's committees in Social, Food, Budget, and Security.

In past years, Dorm Government has worked out a school parking plan, strived to better the cafeteria food, helped organize the Hawk Squad, started the drive to have a master TV antenna installed in the new Dorm, and organized social events.

The election is being run by Senate Parliamentarian Steve Pecchio. Any additional questions can be directed to him.

Housing Directors Were Prepared for Freshmen

By Kimberly Newton

Six hundred and ninety-nine students, armed with thousands of suitcases and trunks, arrived on campus last Saturday, expecting academic achievement, an exciting social life, and a nice room to live in.

The housing directors were well prepared.

For several months, housing officials have had room preparation in full swing, as they prepared for the great masses of new students. They transformed doubles into triples, triples into quadruples, and they found even more space by changing corners of lounges into additional rooms.

Unable to find enough room on campus, the college rented the former Bristol Motor Lodge, and bought the Almeida Apartment complex.

According to William O'Connell, acting dean of students, 276 of the 341 rooms, on campus were painted.

"Every room in the new dorm has been painted, and more than half of the rooms in the old dorms were also done. The only rooms not painted were the ones in which summer students were living."

The rooms that were built out of the lounges are somewhat different from the rooms originally built in the dorms. In the old dorm, approximately one third of each lounge was transformed into a room, and in the new dorm, about one quarter of each lounge was used.

Many students were pleased with their living accommodations, especially those with newly painted rooms. But many of the students who found themselves a room that was supposed to be a double, and especially those finding themselves living in what used to be part of the lounges, were not.

One student who lives in a lounge room on the third floor felt that because she was paying the same price as everybody else, she should have the same size room. That student's parents have threatened to remove her from the college if she is not transferred to another room.

Another student living in a lounge room said, "I can't believe we have to share a desk. I can do much of my work on the bed, but what happens if we both have to type? Am I supposed to use the floor? I would guess that fewer mistakes can be made by typing on a desk."

According to Housing Directors Barbara Love and Peter Sherman, the lounge rooms aren't a perfect solution to the overcrowding.

"But keeping students housed across the bridge, like we did last ramada Inn, is a big mistake," said Love. "It forces students to become disoriented with the college community. That bridge makes an awfully big difference in students feeling that they belong."

According to both Love and Sherman, if the enrollment goes down this semester, by students not returning, or by leaving during the first semester, they will be able to decrease the number of students living in the rooms.

However, the triples will be the first rooms to be worked on. According to Barbara Love, most of the students at Almeida and the motor lodge, really enjoy their living to both the administration and the clerical staff.

The memo stated that a strike would not be in the best interest of the students of RWC, and that the Senate would do everything in its power to eliminate the consequences of any strike.

Fusco also sent a memo to all students of RWC stating the reason for the possible strike, and asking for volunteers to help man the in-person registration booths if a strike had occurred.

Donna Belmore said that "Fusco addressed both teams as to the position of the students, and stated the Senate did not side with either the administration or the staff."

"We were aware that students wanted classes to begin as scheduled, and we wanted what was best for the college community. I feel we could have done better if the students supported the strike."

Senate Shows Its Stuff

It is only during times of crisis that the true stuff of which an organization is made is revealed. The events of the past week have shown exactly what type of organization the RWC Student Senate is.

Upon learning that a situation existed that could possibly be very detrimental to the student body—namely, a strike by the Clerical Staff Union that could shut down registration and even classes—the Senate, under the leadership of Steve Fusco, acted immediately to alleviate any of the possible damaging consequences.

In a series of emergency meetings, the Senate first carefully considered the problem, and the possible adverse effect to the student body. Using as their only criteria the best interests of the students, the Senate adapted a number of resolutions. They first acted to make the student body aware of the situation. They then drafted a plan of action, using student volunteers to make sure that the college functioned as normal.

It is not important whether these plans were ever even put into action. What is important is that we have a Senate that not only solves present problems, but is farsighted enough to plan for future difficulties. And for that, as well as their totally professional manner during this week, their careful consideration of the problem: bravo.

Boredom or Freedom?

One of the basic freedoms of the American People is freedom of the press. Unfortunately, in our country today, this freedom is slowly eroding away.

The reason is not only several recent Supreme Court decisions, but the disinterest of the people toward the press, especially in colleges. And RWC is no exception.

Unfortunately, unless students realize that freedom of the press, and the quality journalism that can result from this freedom, is not a gift to be admired, but a goal to be strived for, the situation will not change.

So, if you are concerned about freedom in an age of boredom, why not step forward where you can help: at the college newspaper level. Get involved with your student newspaper.

Should Freshmen Be Allowed to Attend RWC?

Yes

By William Winter

There are so many reasons why we should once and for all end the annual influx of freshmen that I am almost embarrassed to have to point them out.

Let's begin with the most annoying. There are, by rough count, thousands and thousands of these freshman-type people swarming all over campus right from the start of the year. Most of them are quite small, so you must take undue caution where you place your feet.

Unfortunately, these freshmen do not spend all their time on sidewalks dodging your size elevens. They also occupy dorm rooms. Far too many dorm rooms, as a matter of fact. Since the Board of Health says we can not store them in closets between their classes, we need another solution. Why not just do away with them completely? Think of the advantages.

First, with so much empty space, students would no longer have to live in doubles or triples—or even, for that matter in singles. Every upperclassman could get their own personal room or unit. "Where do you live?" you would be asked. "Oh, third floor," you would say casually. "I could have one room to sleep in, one study room, four bathrooms, a room for your French maid, and 53 guest rooms."

Second, parking would no longer be a problem. The college would actually encourage students to bring two, or even three cars. All the empty slabs of cement could be turned into miniature golf courses or rented out as airport runways. And President Rizzini could get his own Concorde jet for quick take-offs as he embarks on nationwide searches to find permanent directors to run the golf courses.

Additional advantages would be the peacefulness that would descend upon the campus. No more having to listen to conversations that begin with "What's your major?" and end with "So what did you say your major was?" No more "Where is classroom 124?" And no more "Wasn't Roger Williams the guy who invented scotch tape?"

Now admittedly, freshmen eventually outgrow all their bad habits and become reasonable facsimiles of civilized human beings. After all, even the ugliest caterpillar will eventually turn into a butterfly.

But who wants to go to college with a bunch of caterpillars?

No

By Kimberly Newton

To extinguish the existence of freshmen on this campus would be a grave mistake on the part of the college administrators.

From the earliest days of RWC, to the present, the freshmen have kept the college progressively moving forward, by contributing wholeheartedly to the ruin of many incompetent staff members. By their very nature, this group of mere adolescents have succeeded in sifting the employees of RWC through the dirt, until, alas, only the truly competent remain. By riding us of freshmen, the administrators would have a group of employees competent enough to only lace their shoes.

It would be very tricky indeed if the administrators stole our beloved freshmen from us. If they did so, they would ruin our link to examine their own competency, because after all, competency is judged solely on the freshmen they choose.

Second, we need freshmen to keep Hawks busy. To the average person, Hawks sole purpose on earth is to build muscles by carrying suitcase after suitcase, and trunk after trunk, up absurdly long flights of stairs. But, only to "people in the know" do hawks represent the group of people who are the first to rate and initiate the freshmen, and are the first to inform the student body if the administrators did a satisfactory job at choosing the best freshmen.

The second group of people who would lose their illustrious positions if freshmen were banished from the campus would be the too-busy, too-exhausted housing directors. Ninety-nine percent of the housing office's work is created by the freshmen. Everyone knows that the housing directors main function on life is to play hide-and-go-seek with lost keys, tag with lost roommates and chicken with a group of RA's who wouldn't or rather couldn't, be found when a freshman locked himself out of his room, again.

Resident assistants would lose their positions in a matter of seconds if we cruelly put an end to freshmen. Most importantly, they wouldn't have anyone to tuck in at night. There wouldn't be any water fights to put an end to, any one to tell "it's time to study, don't you think?", or any stereos or television sets to lower.

If the college got rid of freshmen, it would begin progressively moving backward in a very fast pace indeed.

Quill Interview

Fusco Explains Senate Purposes

Quill: For the benefit of the new Students, could you explain exactly what the Student Senate does?

Fusco: Sure. The Student Senate has many purposes. First, we support and fund many of the clubs and organizations on campus, such as WROG, the QUILL itself, and some popular clubs like the Dive Club, the Sailing Club, and the college yearbook.

Another purpose of the Student Senate is to be the student voice. We act as the student's voice through our many college committees that the Senate belongs to, such as the Academic Council and the All-College Council, where the students, administrators and faculty meet to make up College policies.

The Senate also runs all social events on campus through our Social Committee; rock bands, jazz bands, and disco bands. This year we hope to have a more healthy mix of entertainment than in years past.

Another thing the Student Senate does is provide student services. Some of our the things we've already student pays a $25 Student Activity fee, which goes to the Student Senate for distribution among the various student activities at the college, such as clubs and social events.

Quill: who decides where this money goes?

Fusco: The 15 Senators. At the end of each academic year, the Senate

Quill Interview by William Winter

draws up a budget which distributes the money—about $80,000—to the 32 clubs and organizations on campus.

Quill: If I were Joe Freshman, and came up to you asking what the Senate was going to do for me personally, what would you tell me?

Fusco: Well, I would explain that the Senate runs the social events every weekend, including all the bands and entertainment at the Rat.

I would let him know that if he has any complaints to the Administration; any gripes or problems, then the Student Senate is the organization which brings these matters to the Administration.

I would certainly point out that if he was interested in any kind of extracurricular activity, there should be at least one that should interest him at the school. These clubs are sponsored by the Senate.

Quill: You mentioned that the Senate would bring student gripes to the Administration. Do you think that the Senate has any real power at this college? Do people listen to the Senate?

Fusco: Yes, and I can cite a few good examples. Last year, when the Dean of Students selection process was going on, the Senate came out in favor of an external search, while other groups in the college selected a candidate from the internal search. The President of the College came out in favor of the external search, as the Student Senate requested.

The Senate also has voting members on many of the all-College committees, and can have a vote in big policy decisions which can affect the college's immediate and distant future.

We have voting members on the Academic Council and the All-College Council, and they have just as much say in those committees as any Administration or Faculty member.

We now have also have a non-voting member on the Faculty Senate, so at least we can have our voice heard there.

Quill: Are there any areas of student life that the Student Senate does not directly deal with?

Fusco: In a way, the Senate is not specifically involved with dormitory problems. Several years ago the Senate started an organization known as Dorm Government, which is the arm of the Senate which deals with dorm problems. So if any specific dorm problems came up, we would turn them over to Dorm Government, and it's president, John Mount.

Another activity that is frequently mistaken to be under the realm of the Senate is athletics. Sports come under the jurisdiction of the Administration, and are not run by the Senate.

Quill: What is the relationship of the Senate and the Clubs on campus?

Fusco: Well, that is one of my special concerns this year. In the past, the Student Senate would give clubs their funds, and then the clubs would be on their own. Frequently, you would find clubs not getting off the ground until the second semester. It was a bad situation.

This year, I've instituted a Clubs Committee on the Senate to make us more aware of the day to day activities of the clubs, and make sure they are responding to the wants of the students. I think it will really work.

Quill: Besides the better control of clubs, what are your personal goals this year as Senate President?

Fusco: I have basically one major goal, and that is to bring the Student Senate back to the students; to make sure the Senate is actually serving the students of Roger Williams College.

Some of my other plans are more representation on college committees. We're very hopeful about getting representation on the Board of Trustees, something that's never happened at this college. By having a representative on the Board, we will be involved in the highest level of decision making at this college. This could happen within the next month or so.

Quill: If you are to be remembered in later years, for what achievement would you like to be remembered for as President of the Senate?

Fusco: I would like to be remembered for having brought the Senate back to the students.

Quill: Thank you.

Newsmaker

Sitting on the Student Senate's new advertising manager's seat has given Gretchen Ebel the power to decide who attends RWC social activities and who doesn't.

"If I do my job right, everyone is well-informed, large groups of people attend social events, and they are a general success. If I don't keep everyone informed, well I guess we all lose out," Gretchen said.

Gretchen handles the bulk of the advertising, which is mostly on-campus based. Her budget is divided between Quill, WROG and poster advertising.

The posters, which are designed and displayed by her on a weekly basis, inform the campus of coming attractions for a specific week. Three display locations have been chosen, all of which are placed to attract the attention of a certain group.

"For instance, posters are placed in the cafeteria for residential students, on the commuter board in the snack bar area for off-campus students, and in the library for everyone else," she said.

"With posters, and Quill and WROG ads, I hope everyone will be sufficiently informed.

For the students who somehow miss the advertisements, an activities calendar has been placed in each student's room, she said.

"A lot of work went into the calendar project, but everyone seems to be highly impressed with it. The larger the crowds that attend the social committee's activities, the more the work will seem to have been worth the effort. I also hope people will be pleased with the amount and variations of the activities planned."

SIGN OF THE TIMES—Gretchen Ebel, the senate advertising manager

Not only did Ebel do the artwork on the cover of the activities calendar, but she also designed last year's spring weekend tee shirts.

Ebel, who served on the Social Committee and Public Relations Committee before joining the Senate, deems her entry into student government as rather amusing.

"It all began when I was bored one Saturday evening and asked my RA if I could paint my door to my room."

When it was just about complete, Scott Bauer came by, and evidently liked my artwork. He asked me to paint some posters for the Social Committee."

Laughing she said, "I haven't stopped since."

Ironically enough, the person who got Gretchen started on the student government, lost his position to her months later.

Ebel sworn into her seat on the Student Senate last March, following the resignation of Bauer, who resigned his position on the Student Senate in protest of the Senate's decision not to allow him a leave of absence.

She was subsequently voted into the Senate in the regular elections held at the end of the Spring semester.

Some Advice to Freshmen

There is an old Chinese saying that goes: "It is better to take advice than to give it." With this in mind, all you Freshman out there: Oriental and otherwise pay attention. You are going to get a chance to listen to some advice.

The following advice was donated by upperclassmen, school workers, administration personnel, Ann Landers, and general pool of common sense.

"Have fun but remember what you are here for." —A Sophomore. Separate your clothes by color before you wash. "1. The best time for dinner is 5:15 to 6:00. 2. Do your laundry during the mid-day. 3. Get your rest. 4. Don't bite the hand that feeds. 5. Be kind to secretaries." —A secretary.

Vote in all student government elections.

Listen to WROG and read the

"Never trust an upperclassman who gives you advice." —A Senior.

Begin your semester with study—you will be thankful later.

Get to know your professors—it will come in handy when you are trying to turn in a late term paper.

"Like yourself—and everything else will fall into place." —Bill O'Connell.

Go to the Coffeehouse Theatre. It's good entertainment, and inexpensive.

students living on campus.

"From what we can tell, the only students not happy are those in the triples and the lounge rooms," she said.

O'Connell stated that all 33 students who are currently living in triples were notified over the summer that they would probably be placed in a triple.

"Because enrollment drops within the first few days of classes, we should have all of the triples turned into doubles within two weeks," said O'Connell.

County Fair Comes To Roger Williams

The RWC campus will be magically transformed into a Country Fair on Saturday, Sept. 29 as the college celebrates Homecoming '79 and Parents Day.

"Homecoming '79 will be a major highlight of the year for alumni," Thomas V. Falciglia, the College's Executive Director for Development, said this week.

Parents Day, to be held in conjunction with Homecoming, will provide the opportunity for parents to join their sons and daughters in the special activities on Sept. 29.

And a special day it will be—with a giant tent erected to house many Country Fair activities, including exhibits from Coggeshall Farm in Bristol. "Under the big top we'll have entertainment, some delicious food and many activities to interest everyone attending," Falciglia stated.

The Country Fair will begin at 12 noon and during the afternoon musical entertainment will be featured, with attractions ranging from chamber music to country and western. Refreshments will be served during the musical programs, with small tables set up around the bandstand on the College Quadrangle.

A special movie show for children will also be held in the afternoon in the Classroom Lecture building beginning at two. And, weather permitting, balloon rides over the Fulton Campus will also be offered.

A Las Vegas Night, featuring many games of fun—and chance—will be held in the Student Center from 4 to 10 p.m. Those attending will have the opportunity to take home some beautiful prizes with their "winings".

A chicken barbecue picnic supper will be served on the lawn in back of the Student Center, overlooking the bay. At 8 p.m., a performance of "What the Butler Saw" by TIFOBET (The Incredibly Far Off Broadway Theatre), featuring many RWC alumni and students, will be presented under the tent.

The day's activities should appeal to students, alumni on campus attending Homecoming and to parents who will be able to have a family visit, view the Fulton Campus and enjoy the many special events.

In addition, a soccer match between RWC and Mass. Maritime will be held on campus at 2 p.m. The College's new club football team will be playing at 8 p.m. at the Warren High School football field.

Parents will be receiving an invitation, describing the day's activities and a brochure on Homecoming '79 is being mailed to all College alumni.

Top Notch Entertainment Promises Lots of Enjoyment

By Bart Bauer

Though the RWC Social Committee has failed in its efforts to the Beatles to reunite and hold a concert in the cafeteria, they have succeeded in lining up some top-notch entertainment for RWC students this year.

In fact, all the Social Committee Chairpersons agree there are many ways in which this semester's on-campus entertainment has been improved. More, and hopefully better bands, both rock and non-rock; movies every week; and performances of the Theater Department are planned to keep RWC students well entertained.

Musical Events

In the music category, the Student Senate has been working to provide more bands. Instead of past semester's three or four bands, the Senate is putting on nine musical events. Five rock bands have been scheduled to play, as well as four non-rock bands. The non-rock category includes such music as disco, jazz, and bluegrass. The two categories should produce a wider cross-section of music to please every student's taste.

According to Social Committee Chairman Stacey Wall, "students are sick and tired of seeing the same old bands over and over again. This doesn't mean that some old favorites won't be returning, he explained, but the Senate has also been searching for new, high quality talent.

To insure the quality of the talent before bookings are finalized, the Senate either previews the band in person or listens to demo tapes.

On a quieter note, the Senate will be providing entertainment in the Rat every other Wednesday night. Scott Bauer, in charge of booking these events, says he is looking forward to a "Nice small club atmosphere" with good bands and lots of fun at these events."

The Senate will be serving refreshments at all of the events, including beer, wine, non-alcoholic beverages, and possibly food.

Non-Musical Events

If music isn't your idea of fun, the Senate Social Committee is also working to provide quite a bit of entertainment for you.

Twice a week throughout the semester, the Senate will provide four showings of popular movies. These will include such box-office smashes as Coma and The Omen. According to Non-Music Social Committee Chairperson Karen Croake, most of the movies are ones that may have appeared at your local theaters in the past two years.

There are also some special movie packages arranged, such as a double feature horror thriller on Halloween weekend.

Croake is also in charge of booking live non-musical events, and has three lined up for this semester. The first is James Mapes, a hypnotist, who will be appearing on September 15. Mapes has been at RWC before, and should put on a good show if his previous performances were any indication.

Croake has also booked two newcomers to RWC, a comedian and a mime, who will appear later this fall.

Next semester, Croake is thinking about inviting guest speakers, who could talk to students about different job opportunities available upon graduation from college.

Croake also announced that Roger's Corner Store will be providing refreshments at the movies. There will be no alcoholic beverages served, but there will be candy, soda, and popcorn.

Theater Productions

The Coffeehouse Theatre, located in the Classroom Building, will be putting on approximately eight shows. These are small, intimate performances done to help Theater students gain practical acting and directing experience. The rest of the college is usually amazed by the professionalism of each production.

This week's Coffeehouse will feature the Thornton Wilder play, Pullman Car Hiawatha.

Along with the Coffeehouse Theatre, the Theater Department will also offer three main season plays. These will be bigger productions involving more students, and will run for a longer time. In keeping with the high quality of past years, this semester's first main season play will be by William Shakespeare.

While plans for the remaining two plays have not been finalized, the Theater Department has stated that at least one will be a musical.

Summer Sailing Center Draws Fledgling Sailors

For several weekends over the summer, RWC ran an educational program that used sailboats instead of books.

It was the Ocean State Sailing Center, and the idea was to put the college's vacant facilities to good use over the summer months; teach some people to sail, and earn a little money for the school.

Gerard Corneau, a senior here at RWC, was the Program Director and in charge of making sure everything ran smoothly. This is a personal look back at a rewarding, but hectic summer.

By Gerard Corneau

The sun was going down and dusk was nearly upon us, but no one was making a move toward the boathouse. The day has started out like so many recent Sundays, cold and drizzly. But it was warm and breezy now, and not one sailor from the Ocean State Sailing Center wanted the sun to go down.

Roger Williams College's first attempt at administering a summer special activities program has been a real success. One hundred sixty-three novice sailors learned the difference between tacking and by gybing and lots more at the Sailing Center.

The Weekend Learn To Sail Program was responsible for half the total enrollment at the Center and was almost exclusively attended by adults. These students, mostly rank beginners, checked in on Friday evening in July at 7:00 for an audio visual orientation. After spending the night in unit twelve almost everyone rose for breakfast at eight o'clock. The group moved to the boathouse for a long and tiring six hour day in the Center's 16 foot Sparkman and Stevens sloops. After dinner and a sail shape discussion, the staff accompanied the students for an evening at Gillary's or "The Pelham."

After a groggy breakfast, the class returned for its last six hours on the water and the now-famous "Race For The Rum." The sight of 18 beginning sailors thrashing about Bristol Harbor in search of the Holy Bottle (a quart of Mount Gay Special Reserve) was extremely satisfying.

The Junior Sailing Camp took on a slightly different flavor mostly non-alcoholic with a group of excitable 12 years olds bouncing around the boathouse, with their goal a solo cruise around Hog Island in one of our singlehand racing boats. The Phantom defied all the laws of physics about fiberglass by demonstrating an uncanny ability to bounce off of rocks, seawalls, and nearly any potential obstacle.

There are many measures for success in this type of program. The most important however is that everyone has fun, and at the Ocean State Sailing Centre, it was easy.

Special thanks to our instructors, Bill Kopelcheck, Steve Bradfute, Paul Russo, and Dave Ottavianni. To Barbara Love for keeping everything together. To Val, John, and Barry for outstanding food. To Rita and Mary for unending patience. To Vicki Sanders for her article in the Providence Journal, and finally to Bob McKenna for having put his faith, and trust in us.

RWC Sailing Team is Racing Toward Success

By David Kurt

This fall, the RWC Sailing Team will be competing in more than 10 meets against other colleges and universities throughout New England. The team's effort will be directed by this year's President Cathy Newpher, and Vice President Bob Coyle.

This year, for the first time ever, the team has both the facilities and boats practice with. Sailing will be limited to 12 members at any one time, and will be coordinated through team meetings in early September. The team is currently planning to run two separate groups per week.

Since the team is not in the position to teach sailing, they are asking any interested Sailing Club members to merge with the efforts of the Sailing Team.

The team urges all interested sailors to stay tuned for notices on Sailing Team.

THE BOAT PEOPLE-RWC became a sailing school over the long hot summer months. Things always seem cooler in a boat though.
